and our democracy*

Industrial Strategy

Leads to good jobs that put people and nature first

Public

*Give everybody
a shot at success*

Rising income inequality
hurts us all.

But it's not inevitable.

It's the result of choices our politicians make.

To reduce income inequality and make life better for all Canadians, we need to vote for politicians who support tax fairness, public services, labour rights, and a modern industrial strategy.

Signposts on the Road to Inequality

Forces wages down and hijacks our democracy

Attack on labour rights

No industrial strategy

When corporations have control, they choose short-term profit

Attack on public services

Services are provided only to those who can afford them

No tax
fairness

*The
rich
dodge their fair share*

Rising income inequality
hurts us all.

But it's not inevitable.

It's the result of choices our politicians make.

Income inequality rises when we let our governments create laws and policies designed to allow corporations free rein to pursue their own profits.

After 30 years of this, we now know those profits rarely trickle down.
